Major bicycle rally coming to Bethel

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Maine's premier bicycling event is coming to Bethel.

Organizers are now at work planning to host the 14th annual Maine Bike Rally here, July 12-14, 2002.

The event is traditionally sponsored by the Casco Bay Bicycle Club, with assistance from the Bicycle Coalition of Maine and the Merrymeeting Wheelers.

For next year's rally, the three organizations are being assisted by an informal group of Bethel-area cycling enthusiasts.

This year's rally, held in Bath, drew approximately 250 cyclists, according to BCM director Jeffrey Miller.

Up to 300 cyclists, perhaps more, are expected to attend next year's event, Miller said.

Traditionally, many of the participants camp out — as they did at

Cultural survey underway

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

Cultural tourism is big. It's people travelling in search of art, in search of heritage, in search of history.

Last year, cultural tourism was a $6.6 billion industry in New England, Toni Seger said at the cultural town meeting held last Thursday at Crescent Park School.

Seger, director of the Oxford Hills Foothills Discovery Research Project, is spearheading the effort to create a cultural directory for the communities in SADs 17, 44, and 72 — an area stretching from Upton to Denmark. Her vision is to catalog the wealth of cultural heritage in the area, to tap the economic wellspring of cultural tourism for Western Maine.

Seger said the cultural heritage here is readily assessable, which is a key element of successful cultural tourism. That heritage includes

Current gravel pit discussion reflects ongoing land use dilemma

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

The following article is the second in a series on the regulation and economic impact of gravel pits.

For many local landowners, bank-run gravel is money in the bank.

Gravel is used as the base material for public roads, for driveways, septic systems, and around the foundations of new homes.

And gravel can be expensive. Currently, it is selling for about $5 a cubic yard, or between $60 to $70 a load.

Proximity plays a big part in the expense. The more gravel needs to be processed and the longer it needs to be transported, the more it costs.

A number of landowners have small gravel pits. They'll sell a load or two here and there. It helps them meet their living expenses, handle an emergency, or do something special.

One local landowner, who asked not to be identified, recently sold gravel to pay the kids' college tuition. "I wouldn't have done it if I had to go through site plan review," the landowner said.

Yet this is exactly what the town must consider. Historically, Bethel has not regulated gravel pits. But the town's Site Plan Review Ordinance, which was adopted in 1987, includes mineral extraction and rock crushing as industrial uses that should be reviewed.

And for some landowners, enforcing the review requirement may cause economic hardship.

Gloria Crockett of the Intervale Road has a small pit. She and her husband opened it for their construction business years ago, while he was still alive. Now she sells between 300 and 400 cubic yards a year.

"I sometimes have to sell gravel out of my pit to survive," Crockett

School Board waivers on barring some private-school pupils from playing for TMS

After parents from outside SAD44 protest

By ALISON ALOISIO

Should private-school students from Albany, Gilford, Hanover, Upton and Mason be allowed to play on Telstar Middle School sports teams?

No, said a majority of the SAD44 School Board in a Sept. 10 vote. But following protests Monday from several parents of students at the private Mahoosuc Mountains School, the board's Policy Committee will revisit the question.

The issue arose this summer, when Marie Hickey, director of the private middle school, asked the district for clarification regarding athletic participation in TMS sports by her students. At the time, she was applying to the state for formal approval as a private school. In previous years, her students have been allowed to take part in athletics.

After a review of the athletic policy, a majority of directors voted to restrict participation by home-schooled or private-school students (in grades 6 through 8) from communities that do not belong to SAD44 to "non athletic extracurricular activities."

Home- or private-schooled students who are SAD44 residents may still participate in athletics.

Bethel director Becky Cummings, who voted in favor of the exclusion policy, said at Monday's board meeting that her own daughter

W'stock faces maintenance decisions on two roads

By ALISON ALOISIO

The owner of Abbott's Anchorage is asking Woodstock to reinstate summer maintenance on the portion of Lakeside Drive leading to his campground. To do so, however, would likely require a special Town Meeting, because in 1991 townpeople voted to discontinue the road.

Abbott's Anchorage straddles the town line of Woodstock and Greenwood, and is accessible either from Lakeside Drive or South Pond Shores.

Owner Bill Glad told selectmen last week he had been told by two attorneys that he is on solid ground in his request.

It appears, he said, that the 1991 procedure to discontinue the 1,500-foot section of road was not done properly. He said he was not notified of the planned vote, as required. The road was discontinued beyond the turn to the Maine Conservation School.

Glad bought the campground in the late 1980s. "I'm asking for what I had when I bought the property," he said. "I think the taxes I pay more than justify the services."

Glad said he did not become aware of the discontinuance action until about three weeks ago, when he was looking through records.

Robinson Hill man arrested for cocaine trafficking

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Miguel Santiago Reinoso-Hernandez, approximately 35 years old, of Bethel was arrested Monday on charges of cocaine trafficking, marijuana cultivation and bail violation charges.

Reinoso-Hernandez, who was living in a rented house on Robinson Hill Road, is believed to be from the Dominican Republic, but has used different names, dates of birth, and countries of birth when previously arrested in Massachusetts and in Maine for non drug-related offenses, according to state officials.

He has been residing in the Bethel area for approximately five

"IN-YOUR-FACE" HUNTERS

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to address a problem that has become common to my neighborhood, and I suspect other neighborhoods in rural Maine. I also feel that some of my actions to try and resolve this have been misunderstood, namely the posting of some of my property.

Twenty years ago if someone had suggested that posting land would be an option for me, I would have laughed in his face. But when the people using the land became a danger to my family, and myself, it became an option and finally a reality. I am of course talking about hunting and the way people hunt. In the past six years, on two occasions, hunters have shot directly toward my home and the homes of my neighbors. Every year I look out my kitchen window directly down the barrel of some hunter's gun. Usually a stander for a deer drive, whose only field of fire includes my home and homes of my neighbors. At these times one feels like a civilian in a war zone. Nobody is really shooting at you, but there is enough lead flying around that to say you are uncomfortable with the situation would be an understatement. The things I described above don't happen every day or even every week, but they do happen often enough that to ignore them would be to invite disaster.

Posting land in Maine is not a thing done lightly. Nobody knows better than I that there is a stigma attached to it. No matter how valid one's reasons are for posting, they are labeled a selfish a-h--- by some people. Every year I get calls during hunting season from landowners wanting to know when I buy my posting signs. Fortunately for those who use their land, once the anger of the moment has passed, most of them do not want to deal with the stigma that posting brings. I probably would feel the same, if I did not think there was a real threat to the safety of my family. Theft and property damage are things that every landowner who owns any amount of land for any length of time has to deal with from time to time. This is pretty much accepted by most landowners; it is one of those anger-of-the-moment things. But what these "in-your-face hunters" of today are doing is much more serious. They are making people feel threatened in their own homes and on their own property. To feel a threat to one's safety or the safety of one's family is hardly acceptable to anyone.

I grew up hunting in a time of more liberal game laws and fewer people than there are today, and when it comes to hunting, I have probably seen or done most of it, both good and bad. The difference between hunters of today and the hunters of the past is that we tried to keep our indiscretions private and the safety and goodwill of those around us was of the utmost concern to us. To know this is not so today, residents of rural Maine need only look out their window during hunting season.

It would be hard to say if these in-your-face hunters are a majority of today's hunters or not, but they are certainly the most visible. They have eroded support for hunting in rural areas to point that the anti-hunters could never expect to do with expensive media campaigns. The days of in-your-face hunting are long gone; hunting belongs in the woods, not on someone's doorstep. As the conflict between hunters and rural residents continues to grow, with these hunters representing the most visible image of hunting. With their lack of hunting ethics, lack of concern for the safety of others, they represent the worst hunting has to offer. How do we defend and preserve hunting with these people as our role models to the public?

BLOOD DRIVE OCT. 6

To the Editor:

On Saturday, Oct. 6, the American Red Cross, at the request of the citizens of Bethel and surrounding areas, will be holding a blood drive at the Crescent Park School from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The people of our community who are aware of this great event have been responding marvelously to date. This drive will support not only the victims of the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, but also will build an inventory of blood for our Armed Forces, should it become necessary.

For those of you who wish to donate blood for this great effort, please telephone either Seabury and Sharon Lyon at 836-2576 or call me at 665-2717, or fax at 665-2726. If we have your name, city of residence, and telephone number, we will attempt to schedule the drive as much as possible. This will not eliminate waiting, but hopefully minimize it. Although walk-ins are welcome, scheduling in advance may possibly make the day run more smoothly and efficiently.

The businesses throughout the area have been overwhelmingly generous with their donations of food for the cafeteria portion of the drive. We would also welcome additional volunteers, who may contact me at either of the above numbers.

AVOID THE POISON OF HATRED

To the Editor:

As we review the horrendous and senseless events of two weeks ago, aware of the pain and suffering of the individuals involved, it is easy to become caught up in the shared anger and self-righteousness that drives a response of nation against nation or even religion against religion. In these difficult times, it is important to remember that the loving and peaceful nature of mainstream Islam is opposed to the deeds of these terrorists. Indeed the choices these men made contradict the teachings of both the Christian and Islamic communities, and, as we sort out our feelings toward the events, we must not, as individuals, allow our reaction to be magnified indiscriminately into action against the Islamic community as a whole.

As we look to our leaders to direct a national response, let us pray that they direct it toward the groups that planned and carried out this attack, recognizing that any broad act of nationalistic war only risks additions to the count of innocent victims that was started two weeks ago. Let us pray that the resources of this great nation be directed toward removing the misunderstanding that has poisoned the minds of these men even as we now struggle to avoid the same poison of hatred in our own decisions. Let us pray that the chosen response is framed in justice not vengeance. Gandhi has said that an eye for an eye only makes for a blinded world. Let us seek together to use this act of darkness to enlighten the world.

REMEMBERING BILLY STOWELL

To the Editor:

The death last week of my former classmate, Billy Stowell, brought a flood of memories. I believe we first met in Miss Alice Ballard's fourth grade, which that year (1953) was in the Ethel Bisbee School, then known as the Bethel Primary School. He was a bright, active, mischievous and friendly student, who I liked from our first meeting. From that time on, we talked often and participated in various playground activities.

Out of all of this, my most vivid memory of Billy is the time he sent some kind of projectile with an elastic band that hit the derriere of our teacher in the eighth grade at Crescent Park School, the venerable Olive Luray, while she was writing on the board. My mother had Olive as a teacher in the 1930s and had repeatedly warned all her children that we would certainly have to behave in her class. Olive had long fingernails and did not hesitate in the days when corporal punishment was possible to apply them to the neck or arm of any offender. Her other weapons included her foot for kicking students into line in addition to pointers and books that she freely used to club wayward pupils back to order. Mother visited school during this period and was appalled at how badly Billy and the rest of us boys behaved when Mrs. Luray's back was turned. A crayon "war" was on most of the time she was working at the board which would instantly vanish the second she turned to face the class.

One can only imagine how angry Olive was to get hit from behind. She threatened the class with all kinds of dire measures, but no one came forward to admit his guilt. Since there was no confession, we lost our recesses for a week; I don't think Olive ever managed to find out who did the deed. Luckily for Billy, there was also no "snitch" to provide the answer either.

Another thing I recall from that era was the time I once overheard a conversation between Olive and another teacher. They were discussing who their brightest students were. Olive noted that Billy was not the brightest in I.Q. terms, but he was way up there and was by far the best adjusted socially of all the high achievers in the class. Certainly he was a top student without apparent effort, and he also could relate easily to everyone around him.

During our years at Gould, I talked to Billy frequently about many things. His range of interest was even then impressive. He also possessed a great sense of humor and was very witty.

I did not see Billy again until he returned to Bethel in the 1990s. He visited me at my house several times and we enjoyed the same good conversations we always had. As his interest in music developed, he even helped entertain audiences at the Bethel Historical Society's Sudbury Canada Days.

When I heard of Billy's cancer, I was saddened and planned to visit him once with another classmate. The visit did not work out due to weather conditions, and I tried to make other attempts, but never did get to see him again. I will miss his lively wit and general good humor. He was one of the bright lights of my school years and I will always be glad that I was fortunate to know him.

'DAD AND I' EVENTS

To the Editor:

For the past five years, the Celebrating Fatherhood Dad and I series has provided opportunities for children and their dads to play together. I would like to invite dads or other involved men and their children to join us for this year's scheduled events.

Activities are scheduled about once a month and are free of charge, including any special equipment or supplies. Dads and children are welcome to come to one or all of the activities. The first event is a canoe paddle down the Androscoggin River this weekend (Sept. 29). Future events are: hike Mount Will, Oct. 20; bowling and pizza party, Nov. 10; craft and play time with dinner, Rumford on Jan. 10; craft and play time with dinner, South Paris on Jan. 24; cross-country skiing or snowshoeing, Feb. 9; to be announced, March 9; learn to juggle, April 20; canoe trip Androscoggin River, May 18; barbecue picnic, June 8.

So why does this series exist? Because children with two actively involved parents have an easier time finding success in school, are less likely to become substance abusers, and show a high level of self-confidence. Dads indicated that the most useful support is to have things to do with their children. In the words of one six-year-old participant (who was three when she first attended): "Who ever invented Dad's day is a genius because it gives my dad and I something to do together and it's fun."

For me, this program has been a great chance to meet other dads and to learn from the different approaches to raising children we all take. I am also reassured by seeing that I am not the only person experiencing the challenges of parenthood. Also, it is great to spend time away from home with my daughters. Mom loves it, too.

Anyone is welcome to attend; in fact they can bring a neighbor (and his child). Interested dads should sign up in advance so we can plan accordingly. For more information or to sign up, call Jonathan Goldberg at 824-3459 or e-mail Goldberg@bdc.bethel.me.us or call Sally Goddard at Community Concepts, 743-7716. I look forward to meeting the dads and their children.

Roads

Selectmen Percy Monk, who formerly served as road foreman, said the road is in poor condition. In places, heavy trucks have "pounded down" the existing pavement to below the level of adjacent ditches, he said. Monk said if the town fixed the road, the tar would have to be taken out and a layer of gravel put down before repaving.

Glad attempted several years ago to gather enough support among other property owners on the road to make their own improvements, with the intent of asking the town to take it over. The plan never materialized.

If the town resumes summer maintenance of the road, Glad said he is considering gating his end of South Pond Shores Road, which joins Lakeside Drive just before the campground. He owns the Woodstock end of South Pond Shores Road.

Gating the road would eliminate current through traffic that uses it as a shortcut from Rowe Hill to Route 26, Maxfield said.

Maxfield said later he is not sure when such a meeting would take place. Further discussion by selectmen is expected.

Other road troubles

Selectmen also heard from Sheila

Curtis, a Concord Pond Road resident, about winter driving problems on the road, which is technically closed in the winter. In the past, road residents kept the road plowed themselves, but that ended last winter, Maxfield said.

Curtis said more people have been using the road in the past couple of years. "Because it's a through road from Peru to Milton Plantation, it's an attractive nuisance. It's attracting people not prepared to navigate the road.

Maxfield said later he is not sure when such a meeting would take place. Further discussion by selectmen is expected.

Briefly

More Red Cross fundraising

ANDOVER/NEWRY—Students at the Andover Elementary School last week raised $775 to benefit the Red Cross in the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. That amount was matched by Andover Wood Products, and the total was in turn matched by Ethan Allen, AWD's parent company. The overall total to be contributed is $3,100. In an upcoming fundraiser, the Black Bear Bed and Breakfast in Newry will donate its rentals earnings for Oct. 7 to the American Red Cross for disaster relief.

Blood drive update

BETHEL—Donors and volunteers are still being sought for an Oct. 6 Red Cross Blood Drive at the Crescent Park Elementary School. To sign up, call 836-2576.

Duplessis to be honored

RUMFORD—Chris Duplessis, 14, of Gilead will receive a citation for bravery from New Hampshire Gov. Jeanne Shaheen for his action in saving a man from a fiery car crash during the Mount Washington Auto Road Race. Duplessis and his father, Richard, have served as volunteers at the race for several years in the "Climb to the Clouds," during which drivers race up the 7.4-mile auto road at speeds of more than 100 mph. During practice runs on June 22, driver Ed Romney of Ellenville, N.C. went off the road and hit a tree. His car burst into flames. Romney was trapped, but Chris freed him while Richard sprayed a fire extinguisher. Romney suffered burns and a broken hand in the accident.

Gilead gets addresses

GILEAD—Notices of new addresses were mailed last week to more than 130 households in Gilead. Most addresses include a street number, instead of the previous rural route address, to comply with the enhanced emergency 911 communication system. Gilead will retain the 04217 (Bethel) zip code, but addresses will say "Gilead."

Hanover shifts meeting

HANOVER—Selectmen have temporarily changed their regular monthly meeting day because of a schedule conflict. The October meeting, and perhaps the November meeting as well, will take place on the third Monday. The time and place, 6 p.m. at the Town Hall, will remain the same.

Referendum delayed

BETHEL—A SAD44 referendum tentatively proposed for this fall will be delayed until next spring, Supt. Kent Rosberg said this week. The vote will address several facilities issues involving the Telstar complex and the Transportation Department garage. The district has now decided to also look into the possibility of a project to extend Bethel water and sewer lines to Telstar, and more time is needed to study the issue, Rosberg said. In addition, SAD44 is waiting to hear back regarding a grant application related to the original Telstar proposal.

Health expo at Telstar

BETHEL—The "Living Well in the Valley Health Expo" will take place Oct. 5 at Telstar Regional Middle/High School, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Free health screenings (cholesterol, blood pressure, pulmonary function and scoliosis) will be offered, as well as exhibitions on health, nutrition, physical activity, safety, wellness and other topics. Admission is free. The event is sponsored by SAD44, the River Valley Healthy Communities Coalition, Androscoggin Home Health Care & Hospice, Swift River Health Care, Community Concepts and Shop 'N Save.

Cianbro employee electrocuted

RUMFORD—An employee of the Cianbro Corp. was electrocuted while working at the Mead Corp. paper mill Saturday. James Pelletier, 38, of Canton, was working on two pumps when the accident occurred at around 5 p.m. in the mill's chemical recovery facility. No one else was hurt. The U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration was investigating the accident.

Other elevators have flaw

AUGUSTA—State inspectors have discovered another 35 elevators that potentially have the same fatal flaw that was implicated in the death of an 8-year-old boy last month. The 35 elevators with the door-and-gate design were in operation when the state inspected them, but all have been condemned. None can be put back in service until the problem is fixed, according to Kristine Ossenfort of the state Department of Professional and Financial Regulation. Officials did not say where the elevators are located or how many had valid state licenses. The findings were released six days after the state began making emergency inspections to find out if other elevators have the same problem as the one that crushed a Maryland boy at the Bethel Inn last month. Joseph Smith, of Bel Air, Md., became wedged in a 7-inch gap between the elevator's outer door and inner gate Aug. 23. He was crushed when the elevator was called to another floor. This year, a 4-inch standard went into effect. A 5-inch standard had been in place for many years before that. The state had inspected 96 elevators by mid-afternoon Friday, so more than 36 percent of those examined violated the space standard for elevators with the door-and-gate design. Inspectors hope to inspect the remaining 80 elevators by the end of the week. State officials say about 181 of the state's 2,800 elevators have the door-and-gate design. Ossenfort said officials "are concerned that we have found so many" elevators with excessive spacing.

Anti-discrimination training offered

PARIS—The Workplace Equity Project of the Maine Civil Liberties Union Foundation will hold a training Oct. 3 to help prevent workplace discrimination against gay, lesbian and bisexual employees. The training is co-sponsored by the Growth Council of Oxford Hills. The training will help area civic and business leaders identify policies and strategies they can use to create safe and productive work and community environments. Topics will include: why sexual orientation is a workplace issue; how to identify negative attitudes about sexual orientation and how to address negative behavior quickly and effectively; how to develop effective personnel policies and practices to address disparate treatment of gay, lesbian and bisexual employees; and specific state and federal laws related to sexual orientation and employment discrimination. ### From the Bethel Police Log:

Police assist with violent subject

At 5:08 a.m. on Sept. 23 police were dispatched to back up a state trooper at Sunday River. He had responded to a burglary in progress. The officer met with the trooper and because of the attitude of the subject, it was decided the Bethel officer would transport, because his cruiser was equipped with a cage. The subject was very violent and uncooperative, but was transported without incident.

Thursday, Sept. 20

At 9:50 p.m. police were advised of a 911 hang-up at a Route 232 residence. On arrival, the officer found a subject in possession of beer and showing signs of intoxication. It was found he was on probation with a condition of not to possess/consume alcohol. Frank Tutko, 50, was arrested for violation of probation and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

Friday, Sept. 21

At 1:43 a.m. police stopped a subject on Route 2 for speeding and swerving. He showed signs of intoxication and was given field sobriety tests. Edward S. Chapman, 48, of Bethel was arrested for OUI and taken to the Oxford County Jail. He was also charged with speeding.

Monday, Sept. 24

At 11:30 p.m. police assisted a Sheriff's Deputy with a domestic assault on Main Street in Locke Mills.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summon, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

Gravel pits

said, "It helps put food on the table. It helps pay the property taxes."

Crockett's pit is grandfathered; it was opened before the ordinance was adopted. If she were faced with a choice of closing the pit or going through the process, she said she'd probably close the pit.

The town of Bethel does frequent commerce in gravel, as well. The town doesn't run a pit, so winter sand is currently purchased from an unregulated pit located next to the airport. Other pits in the vicinity will supply gravel for the airport construction. And gravel excavated from the proposed pond site will be sold to help offset the costs of pond construction.

The sprawl connection

For many local landowners, the current conflict about regulating gravel pits is the latest example of the clash between traditional land use and suburban sensibilities.

The rural landscape is a working landscape. Most landowners can only afford large land holdings if the land supports itself.

Farmers need to plow, hay, and spread manure. Woodlot owners need to harvest timber, which includes building the roads that make logging possible. Ski areas and golf courses need to be maintained in conditions that attract people to partake in their recreational offerings.

These are traditional land uses. Gravel extraction is part of the package. Productive lands mean there will be trucks, there will be noise, there will be potential chemical use. Productive land use, which preserves rural land, doesn't always match the image of the scenic rural landscape most people want to preserve.

According to Even Richert, of the State Planning Office, sprawl can frequently be attributed to curtailing productive land use. When a landowner cannot earn the money to pay property taxes, selling house lots becomes an attractive alternative. It's sprawl in action.

And gravel seems to be at both ends of the sprawl equation. The road building and subdividing associated with sprawl create demand for gravel; even as the encroaching suburbs create a demand to regulate gravel production.

As good gravel disappears, rock crushers become more common.

A non-renewable resource

But there is one significant difference between gravel and other traditional land uses, Richert pointed out. "Forestry and farming are renewable resources. Gravel isn't."

According to Ken Sweeney of the MDOT Bureau of Project Development, the state is slowly running out of quality gravel.

"That leads to rock crushing and blasting," Sweeney said. "It impacts project cost."

Rock crushing, sifting, and gravel mining frequently go hand in hand. Most small pit owners import a crusher to the site for a few days or weeks to build up a stockpile. Then, quiet returns to their pits.

While the demand for gravel is increasing, the supply is diminishing. The rich supplies in the area, left over from the glacial action that sculpted the local landscape, are highly sought after. The local gravel needs little processing. It can be marketed competitively.

"They just don't make it anymore," said Dennis Wilson, owner of D. A. Wilson and Sons. "That's why the rock crusher is becoming more common."

Good neighbors

D. A. Wilson and Sons has been in business for 47 years. Based on those years of experience, Wilson said he believes that a properly managed pit can be a good neighbor.

"We run out of eight pits in the towns of Greenwood, Bethel, and Gilead," Wilson said. "All of them are less than five acres, and aren't regulated. We only crush in one pit in Greenwood."

According to Wilson, there are a number of things pit owners can do to be considerate of neighbors. They include visual screening and noise control, using calcium chloride to control dust, and limiting the hours of operation.

"These are items of community courtesy," Wilson said. "People should be concerned about their neighbors."

Wilson also said that when his company is finished with a pit, it is landscaped and reseeded. His company recently closed a pit on Route 26. It is now the site of the Alder River Self Storage.

Correction

Last week, The Citizen reported that a West Bethel pit owned by Keith Durgin went through site plan review because of Shoreland Zoning regulations.

But according to Durgin, his pit was reviewed not because of shoreland zoning, but because Bethel's Site Plan Review Ordinance required it.

Durgin said that although he opened his pit shortly before the town adopted the ordinance, the consulting engineer for the project, Billy Stowell, said he believed the ordinance required the pit to be reviewed, so they presented the project to the Planning Board.

Note: Yesterday evening, after the Citizen's publication deadline, there was a public hearing on gravel pits. The hearing will be covered in next week's edition.

Players

plays on an already-crowded TMS field hockey squad. The team does not cut players, and the students can play only every other game because of the large numbers, she said.

Adding more youngsters who are not TMS students or district residents would be a greater burden on the coaches, said Cummings.

"It's ridiculous now," she said.

Other board members expressed concerns about teams on which players are cut. They said it would not be fair for a district student to lose a chance to play on a team because a nonresident, private, or home-school student was a better player.

MMS parents' view

But MMS parents strongly disagreed.

Rick Coulombe of Mason said in a letter to the board that his daughter attends the private school. But, he said, he has other children who go to district schools, and he grew up and lived in Bethel until two years ago.

"Should my daughter be punished because my wife and I decided on trying a new way of teaching and learning or because my address ends with 'township'? We live about 500 yards from the West Bethel line."

Bike rally

Telstar, when a rally was held here in the early 1990s.

But the majority of the participants tend to opt for the creature comforts of local B&Bs, inns and motels, according to organizers.

The weekend's event usually begins Friday afternoon, with registration and a variety of rides, including dinner rides to local restaurants.

Meals for the next two days are covered by the registration fee paid

He continued: "If it's staffing, I would be happy to volunteer in the sports program. If it's financial, I would be happy to donate money needed for my child to participate in sports. All my other children actively participate in sports year around in the SAD44 schools. The only difference is that they are not home-schooled."

He said his daughter would return to Telstar for ninth grade.

Another parent, Robin Zinchuk of Albany, voiced similar sentiments at the meeting.

Hickey apologized to the board for not becoming involved in the policy discussion earlier. She was sent notification of the proposed change in the summer, but said she misread it as intending inclusion of the students, and therefore did not pass it along to parents. She also asked for reconsideration, advocating the sharing of resources.

Bethel director Jill Rundle was still skeptical of including the students. She said if she had children in a private school, "I would never expect to come back and ask for a la carte menu" of activities.

A majority of the board eventually voted to send the issue back to the Policy Committee, which will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Telstar Library.

forestry and wood products, farming, recreational tourism, and historic villages.

Seger said it is economically viable to develop and promote local arts, history, and heritage. "The cultural tourist stays longer and spends more," she said.

Nearly 30 area residents attended the cultural meeting. They identified the area's strengths — a number of artists and artisans, strong cultural organizations, and traditional industries.

But there were a number of weaknesses, as well. For visual and performing artists, there is a lack of performance and display space, and lack of audience. Arts education in the schools is under funded and needs to be more fully integrated into existing curricula. Cultural organizations, such as the Bethel Historical Society and granges, have aging memberships. Maintaining historic buildings is expensive.

The lack of a regional identity, a local brand name, was also identified as a weakness.

In order to capitalize on the area's strengths, Seger, with the aid of the Mahoosuc Arts Council, is conducting a survey of cultural assets in the area. Those assets range from painters to potters, writers to woodcarvers, loggers to librarians. It includes historic buildings and historical societies, Maine guides, musicians, and maple sugaring.

The survey forms are simple. There is one for people and organizations, another for places. The forms will be available at townhalls, libraries, schools, historic societies. They can also be downloaded from the Discovery Research Project's Website, www.westernfoothills.com.

The deadline for returning the survey forms is Nov. 30.

This information will be loaded into a database. Eventually, it will be published in a directory, which will be made available to anyone interested.

For more information, contact Toni Seger at 928-3712, Vicki Rackcliff at 824-3537, or visit the Website: www.westernfoothills.com.

by Rockie Graham Finally, the rains have come. It is late for those whose wells have gone dry, but it has come at last. Hopefully, it will be enough rain to make a difference. It is nice to hear it falling and definitely makes me feel lazy and not want to get out of bed in the morning. Even Tasha, after waking me up to say good morning or just to make sure I'm still alive (I'm not sure which), went back to bed and slept for a while.

A difficult time for all of us became a little harder last week with the death of friend Billy Stowell.
Billy and I worked with each other when I worked at the Bethel Town Office, as he had a land use consulting business and had to come before the Planning Board for approval of the jobs he contracted for.
Billy and I became friends around music and hiking, also. We went on several day hikes in this area.
Knowing that Billy was ill, it was still hard to say goodbye on last Wednesday. His funeral was well attended and filled with remembrances of things he had done and said. Billy was one of 12 and being a middle child had siblings on both sides that remembered him. It was great to see them all there. Many I had met previously and many knew me through this column. His daughter, Jen, gave a very moving talk that brought many of us to tears. The service and sermon were great; they had been pre-planned by Billy. Goodbye, Billy. You will be missed by many.

On a brighter note, I attended the Common Ground Fair last Saturday.
The weather was much better than predicted and I didn't need my rain gear. The food was plentiful and good, the air was warm but crisp and the people were great.
The fear of rain seemed to keep the crowds down, but that was okay with me. As usual, I got to see people I never see (even though some live right here in the Bethel area), and to meet some new people. The music was good — I went to the house run by Joe Clark. I was amazed at all the appropriate songs that were being sung. I got to see Fair friends, Lou and Em who I met

Only nine teams were able to finish the race five days later. Tracyn and Norm's team finished ninth, despite carrying an extra 14 or 15 pounds of camera gear, which they used to film the race for Discovery Channel. I'm told the edited tape will be run on Discovery Channel sometime next April. Of course, the family is all very proud of Tracyn and Norm.

Don and Elsie Aylward's daughter, Crystal, made a career change this summer. She attended airline flight attendant training in Connecticut in August. Upon completing the training, Crystal was scheduled to work on her first flight on either Sept. 11 or 12 (I'm not sure of the date). After the horror of Sept. 11, she told her mom she wasn't sure she made the right career move. Elsie also told me she had purchased one of those prepaid phone cards for Crystal so she could afford to phone home while she was in training. It didn't work out quite that way. Elsie said Crystal used the phone card to talk to all her friends and then phoned home — collect.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published here by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

A GRANDMOTHER'S LAMENT

Oh dear, oh dear,
I most certainly fear
That my grown up identity has strayed.
I gurgle, I gargle,
I giggle, I cheer
When with my

"There are beepers and buzzers and whistles and wuzzers.
My home sounds like deep outer space!"

Though once I was serious,
I now am delirious
From electronic toys
all over the place.
There are beepers and buzzers and whistles and wuzzers.
My home sounds like deep outer space.
So many toys for just three little boys,
I can barely keep up with the pace.

I was always amused
by the classical of muse of Mark Twain and those of his style.
Now I find use of the great Dr. Seuss
And my classics are stacked in a pile.
Tristan likes videos, Reese likes Spaghetti-o's, Elijah, his piggy toes.
And that's when they're quiet for a while.

These three boys keep me busy all day.
Just when I think I can tackle the sink
I hear "Come on Grammy, let's play!"
No need to guess why the house is a mess
These boys just don't mind what I say.
Snips and snails and puppy dog tails - For sure are the primary ingredients.

were also reports about progress to the Town Office, and following the meeting, the selectmen viewed the work completed.

The next selectmen's meeting is scheduled for Oct. 29 at 6 p.m. at the new Town Office. On the agenda will be a meeting with the River Valley economic developer.

The Hanover Town Office will be closed Friday, Sept. 28, because Clerk will be in Canada. Take notice that this is the last business day in September and time-sensitive items should be processed before Friday. The office will be open Thursday from 5 to 9 p.m. Last Thursday, Town Office staff attended a Bureau of Motor Vehicles meeting in Paris.

In animal news this week, moose have been seen swimming across the Androscoggin River and strolling along Howard Pond Road in the village. Last Friday, the air in Hanover Village was bad after a skunk challenged a truck and lost at the intersection of Main Street and Howard Pond Road.

Lorraine Gallant arrived home after a time of recovery at Ledgeview Living Center. We welcome her home and hope for her continued recovery.

Officials of Oxford Bear Lodge, Knights of Pythias, have scheduled a meeting for Oct. 10 to take a vote to permanently close. Oxford Bear Lodge began in the 1890s and until recently held regular weekly meetings. Only 16 members remain in the organization that was once very active. The Lodge, built in 1882, is now owned by Community Hall Association and will likely be sold or otherwise disposed of.

As of Sept. 21, out-of-door burning of highly combustible trash is prohibited. This includes the burning of trash in campfires, outdoor fireplaces and any type of open or closed container such as burn barrels or unlicensed incinerators. Out-of-door burning of construction and demolition debris containing plastics (vinyl), rubber, styrofoam, metal, food wastes or chemicals is also prohibited.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

Roger and Louise Twitchell, Ruth Bethel and Dale and Nancy Kimball attended the Bethel Seniors Citizens Club meeting and dinner at North Waterford on Sept. 12.

Dale and Nancy Kimball attended the Harvest Fest on Sept. 21. They had ceramic pieces that children came by and painted. They had a good time there with the children.

The Grange supper schedule is Oct. 13, Harvest Supper and Nov. 4, turkey Supper. There will be a Halloween Party for the area children on Oct. 27. The suppers are at 5 p.m., and I think the Halloween Party is 6 to 8 p.m.

Alder River Grange is going to try and make a quilt this winter to raffle off. All grangers are invited to meet at Nina Mollicone's, as she will be our instructor on how to make a quilt. The days and times will be announced. If anyone else would like to come, please do so. Have a good week. God Bless America.

Andover

by Joan Stinson Carney

The Andover Elementary School would like to thank all who donated to the American Red Cross on Red, White and Blue Day. The school raised a total of $775.11. This donation will be matched by Andover Wood Products and Ethan Allen, for a sum total of $3,100.14. That's an amazing feat; you children deserve a real pat on the back.

The school is participating in a new fundraising drive sponsored by Shop 'n Save. Collect all your "school dollars" and drop them off with the box tops and soup labels in the collection pots at the stores, town office or post offices. You can also drop them off at the school if that's more convenient.

Birthday celebrants for the upcoming week include Jonathan Merrill, David Belanger and Charlie Mills on the 28th; Drew Hutchins, P.J. Farrington; Michael Shaw and Marcia Chastanet on the 29th; Raymond Herrick Jr. and Scott Emery on the 30th; Ann Marie Kneeland on the 1st; Russell Palmer on the 2nd; Kayla Anastasio, Keith Farrington and Pam Berry on the 3rd; Edna Hilton on the 4th. Happy Birthday everyone.

The Andover Public Library would like to welcome two new trustees, Barbara Hayden and Molly Glover. Welcome aboard, ladies.

Driving over here this afternoon,

I noticed how colorful the mountains are starting to become. Although I enjoy the colors, I hate to think of what is coming next. I really, really, really hate winter. I wish I could hibernate or go somewhere where snow, ice, freezing cold, wind-chill factor, blizzards and snow banks are only something you read about and have never experienced firsthand. Jamaica would be nice, but for right now I am going to concentrate on the present and enjoy fall; after all we only have today. Now, where did I put my mittens?

The word for the week is "weft." Look it up. See ya.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

The new flag pole and flag have been installed at the Town Office. Roger Lavallee constructed the flagpole which is metal and should last and serve the town for many years.

Walter Stanczyk obtained the flag, which flew over the aircraft carrier Iwo Jima. It will always be very special because the first time it flew in Upton was in honor of the people who died in New York, Pennsylvania and the Pentagon disasters.

September mornings over the lake are usually enveloped in a fog that gradually lifts as the day goes on. This year when the cloud lifts the lake is lacking in some of its beauty. The drought and water control has changed the familiar contours of this body of water. There are still canoes and a few boats enjoying the foliage, but the larger boats must use a lot of caution when navigating up-lake. Removing the boats at the public landing can be a chore with the drop-off. Roger Lavallee is determined to leave his pontoon boat in the water till the snow flies. That could be next week. We have visions of Roger "breaking ice" to get up the channel in November.

At present we are enjoying extended beautiful summer weather. Tomatoes are getting red (a miracle), and the impatiens are blooming as if they were 100 miles south. In other years these annuals would have been frost nipped and long gone.

Jeanette and Lionel Roy visited on Sunday evening bearing a beautiful basket of vegetables from that wonderful garden on East "B" Hill.

Everywhere the garden stands are loaded with big, fat orange pumpkins. There is a bumper crop this year.

Last Saturday, many towns played host to fairs. Joan Miller and I attended the Harvest Fest in Bethel. We don't know who won "best chowder," but we voted for all of them. Each chowder was different. All were excellent. Evelyn and Jim Kenney, Lis and Theresa Stanczyk, Brenda, Rodney and Elissa Dyer, Sue and Richard Angevine and two grandsons traveled to Wilson Mills/Magalloway fair. The proceeds from that fair will be donated to the New York relief effort. This always is a wonderful fair.

Wilma Rector has returned to her home on East "B" Hill following surgery. We are happy to say she is on her way to recovery.

The Ladies Aid met on Tuesday. Deborah Judkins, president, presented us with a plan for the fall and Christmas season. "Secret Friends" was one of the topics discussed. Names were swapped between members. We have done this before and it can be a lot of fun. Lucille Largesse gave each member a copy of the original Ladies Aid Charter. It was signed by ancestors of some of the members. The Jenkins/Ladies Aid Christmas Party was given a tentative date. I receive many calls from seniors who remember this party from their childhood with fond memories.

Last year, we stirred up a storm with our readers over a loon-like bird, which shows up on the lake each fall. This year, Jennifer Casey, our wildlife biologist, identified the bird and e-mailed us the information on it. It is a Red-Throated Loon, (Gavia Stellata). This bird occurs in many marine habitats. Most often it occurs along shallow

Locke Mills

by Lorraine Larson

I talked with my cousin, Frank Flint in Duluth, Ga., the other day and he said right now he's not sure if Michael and Melissa are getting married in New Hampshire after all. They are still in Texas and they are not sure they want to fly. Her whole family was planning to fly, also, and they are waffling. The reason they intended to come here is because Carol, Mike's mother, isn't all that well and isn't able to travel easily. Personally, I figure flying is probably safer than it's ever been. In my case, it doesn't matter much, no one is going to get me on one of those things for any reason if I can help it. I'll leave the modern travel to my children. Good thing they don't take after their mother.

The road widening seems to be mostly over. They did a good job of keeping traffic moving and the construction itself. There are a few things I would like to have had done differently, but as usual, no one asked me. Too bad, all that good advice never gets aired, much less used. It is a good thing to get it done though. Fall is fast approaching. The leaves are already in full color in the swamp and the others are following quickly. Can snow be just around the corner?

Sharon Bouchard always seems to pick topics I can relate to (except the one about hubby always hogging the blankets; in my case, hubby is always trying to cover me up and I keep throwing them off). Anyhow, the one about the yard sales was right on. I haven't tried to have one since I borrowed a yard from a friend and the whole thing seemed to be more trouble than it was worth. I do remember trying to sell an end table that my mother brought down from Canada as a gift to either her father or my father, I can't remember which, and it is immaterial to the story anyhow. As a child I was fascinated by the fact that the side swung out and revealed a glass ashtray, a metal piece that held either a cigarette or a cigar and a small metal bowl that held matches, I guess. It never had any in it, which probably was wise. I tried to put it upside down on the head of one of my dolls because it looked like a bowler hat. It never stayed but that was okay. I just kept putting it back on until I tired of it and put it back in the hole where it belonged and shut the drawer. It never seemed to occur to me that bowler hats were worn by men and my dolls were all girl dolls. It probably wouldn't have made much difference, I'm sure, if I had any boy dolls, the thing wouldn't have stayed on any better and maybe not as well.

Anyhow, my mother wanted $10 for that table and the only one who showed an interest in it offered me $2. I sold it to her and made up the difference and never told my mother. Years later, I sort of wished I'd kept it and paid the whole $10 for it, although what I'd done with it, I don't know. It really wouldn't fit very well in my décor. Mostly my décor has consisted of eclectic attic and/or modern box. In later years, a lot has been specialty pieces from the "dump room." I suppose swap room would be a better word, but if one says dump shorelines and estuaries. Usually, there are only one or two birds, but they may also show up in large flocks, where feeding is good. Large flocks have been seen migrating past coastal points. This bird changes its appearance with the season, from breeding to winter plumage. Its neck is slender and snake-like. Consult your bird books, as it would take a whole column to describe this fellow. Similar species are the Arctic Loon and the Yellow Billed Loon. Grebes are more slender with longer, thinner necks. The Red-Throated Loons breed in the tundra and along the arctic seacoasts. They also breed around the perimeter of North America to British Columbia and Quebec. It winters from Newfoundland to Florida along the Gulf Coast and on the Great Lakes. On the way south they stop at Lake Umbagog for a little taste of bird heaven before their long journey. The "Bird of the Week" is the Red-Throated Loon.

North Newry

by Gil Seeley

My adopted brother-in-law and wife, Ellie, came from North Hampton one hot Sunday, Sept. 9, and took me to the Balsams Grand Resort Hotel for a feast and tour. After, on the way home, we followed the river and ended up in Berlin, N.H. It was a great day.

Happy Birthday, Jim Anderson Nancy Wight and daughter Loretta, Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark and Gil Seeley took Sis Post to the Sudbury Inn and treated her to a "goodbye" supper. By the time you read this, she will be gone to New Hampshire, where she will reside from now on. "Old books, old wine, old mankin blue... All things in short, to which belong... The charm, the grace, that time makes strong, all these I prize, but (entre nous)... old friends are best." After the supper, everyone in the inn, waiters, waitresses, the owner, went out in front for a "mourning" get-together with candles lit and prayed for all those caught up in the "American Terror."

The Newry Mothers Club wishes to thank the following people who helped make their yard sale a success: Wendy Penley, Joanna Drummond and everyone who do-room, at least no one wonders what I'm talking about. Anyhow, I've had better luck there at yard sales. Andy's Aunt Norma loves to yard sale, but she is willing to spend more than I am. She comes home with some gems though. Right now she is under the weather again and was a little annoyed she can't go to any. Now that is what I call a real "yard saler."

The first Book Discussion Group meeting was held Sept. 13 at the Whitman Memorial Library. This reading and discussion program is open to the public and will be held the second Thursday of each month at 10 a.m. at the library. Interesting books on various subjects will be discussed as well as sharing new book reviews. At the next meeting, Oct. 11, the group will explore a book on the life of Laura Ingalls Wilder, and look forward to a local author, Alice Arlen, present her book on the life of Louise Dickinson Rich at the Nov. 8 meeting. Interested persons may sign up at the Whitman Memorial Library or just attend any of these sessions.

Franklin Grange 124 met for a regular meeting on Monday, Sept. 17, with 17 members present. It was reported that the Grange received third place in the Oxford County Fair exhibit. It was voted to hold a Hee Haw show on Oct. 20. Pomona Grange is at Franklin on Oct. 3 with a supper. The Grange will put on the Republican supper Oct. 9. On Oct. 13, TRIAD will hold a meeting and dinner for all seniors at the Grange Hall from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The program went as follows: opening thought by Bertha, "Trust in the Lord"; song by all, "America the Beautiful"; Bertha received an item that a Canadian wrote, "Tribute to the United States from Canada," read by George Gibbs, Nina Grover and Laura Hutchins and it was very good; song, "Battle Hymn of the Republic"; Dot Canwell whistled "Amazing Grace"; song, "God Bless America." The next meeting will be Oct. 1.

A public roast turkey supper will be held on Friday, Oct. 12, at the West Paris Grange Hall for Tri-Town Ambulance. The committee is Annella, Viola, Peggy, Rena and Evelyn. Price is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Oct. 8 will be the inspection meeting of Judith Grover Tent 17 Daughters of Union Veterans. Norway and Stoneham tents are joining us for a 6 p.m. supper and inspection.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens' meeting for October will be dinner out at Teena's Restaurant on Oct. 4. Each person is to pay for their own meal.

Sympathy is extended to the families of Barbara Billings and Don Mason.

Baked beans, hot dogs, rolls, brown bread and cole slaw — just like a Grange supper. To top off the meal, Dottie Brown made and served a large custard birthday pie and peanut butter pie.

Much sympathy is offered to the families of Duane Abbott, Donald Mason Sr. and Cecil Heath. We were saddened to read three obituaries all on the same day. They will all be sadly missed.

The Harvest Supper was quite well attended Friday evening followed by the dance with The Parisans.

Hi readers. On Sept. 8 a bunch of fellows got together and helped Steve and Criss Craig of Lovell shingle their roof. Those helping were Timmy Craig, Matt McGrasse, Abel Rugg, David Emery, Josh and Corey Jones and Jesse Adams. They all had one thing in common, in that they all worked together at Lovell Lumber Co. at one time and now they are scattered in other various jobs. It was nice for them to get together again as good friends to help another. People around here still do good things. Of the group, Greg Fox had other commitments and couldn't be there.

I was pleased while talking with daughter Sharon Traish one day last week she told me she had just attended what is called a White Coat Ceremony. Our granddaughter, Aisha Traish, of Belmont, Mass., is now an official medical student there. She is studying real hard to become a doctor and is doing very good in her grades.

On Sept. 19, Wednesday, nine members of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War Tent 19 met at the K of P Hall here in Stoneham for their regular monthly meeting. Tent President Gail Butterfield opened the meeting at 7:30 p.m. Secretary and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. The charter was draped in memory of those who lost their lives in the tragic plane crashes that took place on Sept. 11 by terrorists in the United States. Elaine Legieux got the mystery prize. Refreshments were served by Joyce Gouin and Lesley Dean. It was noted that Lesley Dean has been elected as DUV national patriotic instructor.

Tent 19 will be joining with Judith Grover Tent 17 at Bryant Pond an outstanding facility. Not only is it a historical and cultural center for the area, but it is also a remarkable New England museum. Its exhibits are among the best around and its research capabilities are certainly respectable. The contents of the building have been carefully catalogued by Curator Larry Billings.

The Historical Society has exhibits on farming and mills that are informative, also a few books on both subjects. Curator Larry also has given a book on fresh water fish to the society. There are important books and exhibits on hunting and fishing now in the museum.

The recent terrorist attacks in New York and Washington were almost surreal in their horror. We need to work and pray for a renewal of civilization and a civil society in general. Such horrific acts affect us all. The curator was holding the beautiful service of prayer held recently at the National Cathedral. He also put signs saying "God Bless America" on the society museum.

Sept. 29, Saturday, a dance will be held at the Locke Mills Legion Hall, 8 p.m. to midnight, sponsored by the Auxiliary American Legion Units 68 and 151 to benefit the families and children of the Uniform Fire Fighters Association of New York. Donations will also help other people's families who lost their lives at the Twin Towers.

The music will be provided by the band, Rockin' Road Runners. Tickets are $8 each. You can call Doreen at 674-2346 or Sally at 875-3335 for more information or tickets. There will be a 50/50 drawing and other raffles at the dance. Plan to attend and show your patriotism for this good cause.

On Sept. 13, about 60 people attended a celebration for Sherry Poland and Dee Beck. The party was held at their home in Lewiston. An abundance of Mexican food was served and a beautiful cake decorated with whipped cream, strawberries and kiwi fruit for dessert. It was a beautiful day and it was a good chance to visit with relatives we don't see often enough. We wish them the best.

Sincere sympathy to all the many friends and family of Don Mason Sr. who died this past week. Don was very well known by everyone in this area and beyond. Don was a hard worker and worked right up to his passing. Don always had a smile and wave when he saw you. He will be remembered and missed.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that he went to Gould to see Ordway Hall. He graduated from Gould Academy in 1966. He really didn't want to go to his 35th reunion, but he went privately to see the new building. The alumni office was very helpful to him.

Mr. Billings reports that the historical society is a resource for you in these trying times. Share your concerns with its members. He is certainly interested in history, including current events. But his real interest is all aspects of culture and he gives answers to brief questions on the subject.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that being quiet doesn't always mean you have nothing to say."

West Paris

by
Bertha DeHaas

Greetings from a very "fallish" West Paris. As you gaze around, from hill to valley and back, the red of the oaks, the reddish orange of the maples and softer yellow of various other deciduous trees smile back at you, interspersed with the deep green of the evergreens. It is very nearly what is commonly called, "leaf peeper" season. Be courteous as you come upon these slower moving leaf viewers, and also be careful keeping an eye out for moose, as they are on the move also.

Another sign of the times is the geese headed south again.

Troop 1113, Girl Scouts of America, will be starting their new year as of Oct. 11 at the West Paris Baptist Church on Church Street. The meetings will be from 6 to 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. Welcome back girls.

There will be a benefit supper at the Legion Hall on Gore Road in Locke Mills Sept. 29 from 8 p.m. to midnight to benefit the families of the New York firefighters, rescue personnel and policeman that gave their own lives to save the lives of others. This is being done as a joint effort of the West Paris American Legion and Auxiliary 151 and the Locke Mills American Legion and Auxiliary 68. Donations are $8 per person. The band will be the Rockin' Road Runners from Buckfield. Come on out and show your patriotism and lend a helping hand. There will also be a raffle and a 50/50 drawing. For more information, please call Doreen at 674-2346 or Sally at 875-3335. Please come on out to support this worthy cause.

Our condolences go out to the survivors of the terrible acts of terrorism.

Our condolences also go out to the families of Donald J. Mason, Duane W. Abbott and Cecil W. Heath. They will also be missed by family and friends.

God bless you all and see you next week.

on Monday, Oct 8, with supper at 6 p.m. before the meeting. Stoneham Tent is to bring salads. This is inspection night when the books and floor work are inspected. It is always nice to get together with the other tents.

The November meeting is scheduled for Nov. 14. Members take note. The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War will again participate in the Oxford County parade in Norway on Saturday, Nov. 24. Also, they will sell cookies, bars, hot coffee and cocoa.

The Tom Watts books are out. They have a lot of nice items. This is another way to earn money for the organization.

Eight members of the East Stoneham Congregational Church met at the church vestry on Tuesday evening, Sept. 18. It was noted that the summer Saturday sales brought in $693.87. The summer suppers did quite well, too. This is a lot of hard work and in the future more help would be appreciated.

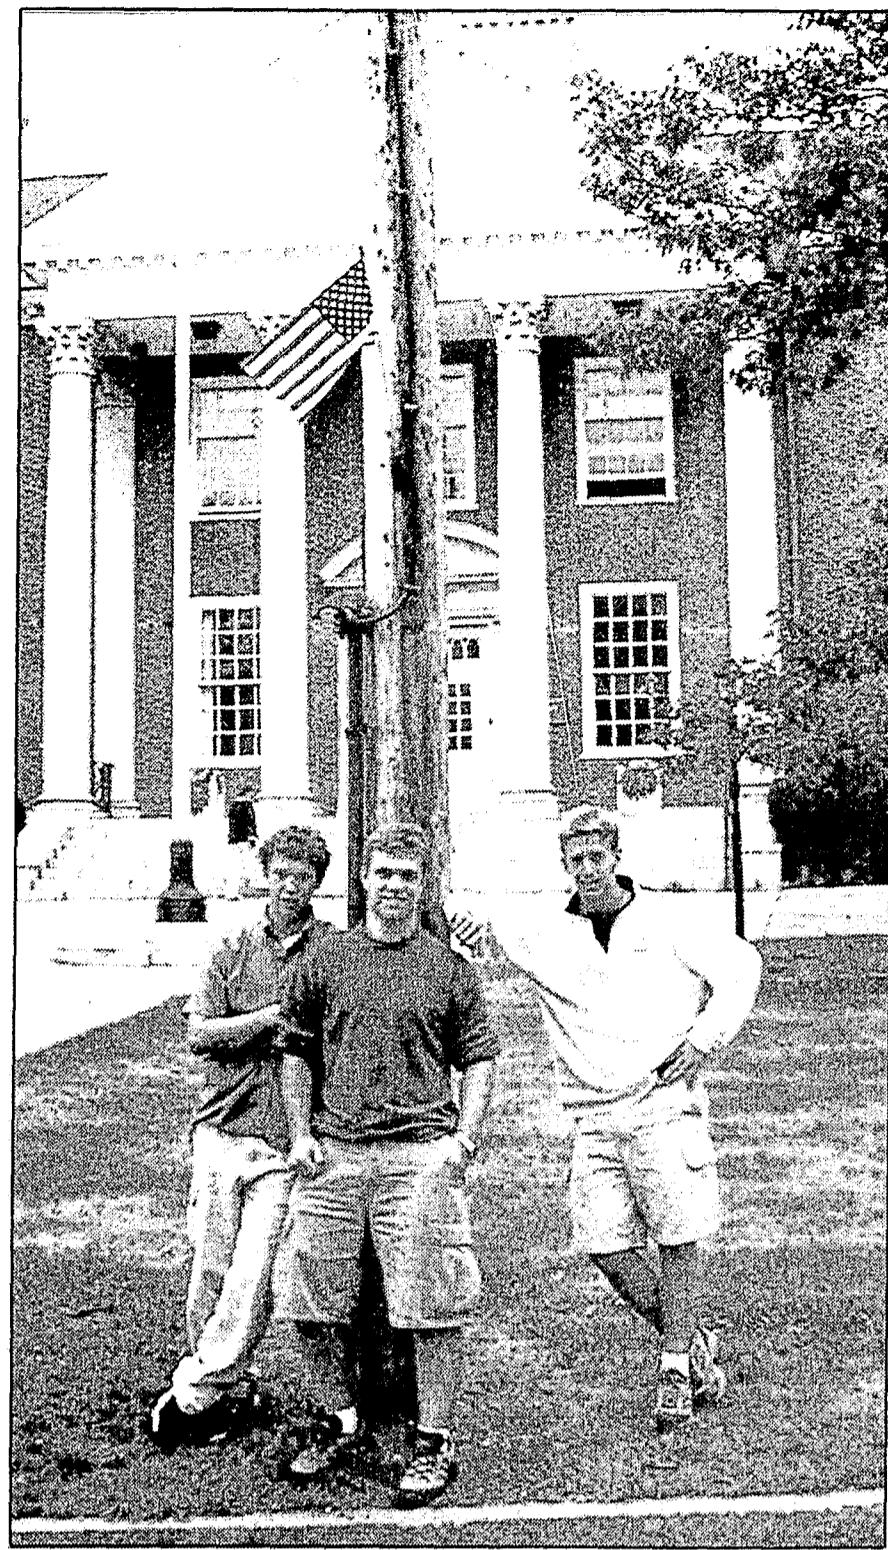

A get-together is planned for 2 p.m. on Oct. 14, at the church for a special occasion and the next meeting will be on Nov. 7 at the home of Mary Grover.

This is fresh-made cider and apple juice. Have you had some yet? We did today and they're good. I liked the sample apples better than the regulars. I must find out the names and get some more. They seemed sweeter and not quite so tart to eat.

Oct. 10 is the North Waterford Senior Citizens bus trip with members meeting at the North Waterford Church at 10 a.m., and the Stoneham harvest public supper is Oct. 11. Keep these dates in mind people. See you there.

This week Rotary heard from Bob Chagrasulis of the Bridgton Rotary Club about the Dominican Republic Hospital/Water Project. Four Rotary grants have contributed to this project over the last three years. Forty-seven Mainers have been among the Angels of Mercy who traveled to the Dominican Republic to either help build this hospital and related water project or provide medical assistance.

RAISING THE FLAG IN THE VILLAGE—Four local Gould Academy juniors put up about 50 American flags on utility poles in Bethel Village Sunday morning. The boys contacted American Legion Post 81 in Bethel, asking what they might do to show support for the United States' cause against terrorism, according to John Head, post finance officer. They coordinated the project with Dick Farren, post commander. The post provided the flags and holders. Pictured are (from left): Quinn McAllister, Bill Murphy and Zeke Davison. Jason Mowery also helped. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

As our country faces the aftermath of the Sept. 11 tragedies, the club heard special words of support from our International friends like Turkey and Ireland.

President Bob Laux, on behalf of the club, presented Robin Mills a contribution for Junior Achievement (JA) of Bethel. After a very successful first year, JA now embarks on its second year in our schools. JA's purpose is to educate and inspire young people to value free enterprise, business, and economics to improve the quality of their lives.

The fourth annual Apple/Pumpkin festival was held at the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center on Saturday, Sept. 22 from 1 to 4 p.m. as part of the Harvest Fest celebration. Both the Mason and Robinson houses were open for this event with the kerosene lamp, railroad, and Bethel exhibits visited by scores of visitors. On the Robinson House porch, Grace McKivergan sold pumpkin whoopie pies, Dean Walker pressed cider, Allan Marcotte made applesauce, and visitors rocked in the vintage rocking chairs. Several enjoyed pumpkin decorating and the apple toss. Thanks go to all who made whoopie pies for the sale and volunteers who did the museum tours and operated the museum shop.

Now that the busy summer is winding down the chamber is starting our planning for 2002. All members are reminded that the 2002 Annual Guidebook advertising sales are coming to a close, so if you haven't placed your ad, or your chart placement or enhanced listing, please do so in the next few days. The goal is to have the guidebook by Nov. 1, so we can send it with Sunday River Ski Resort to the Boston SnowSports Expo (formerly the Boston Ski Show.) Our Board of Directors started the strategic planning process for next year with the help of our good member and organizational consultant, Jeff Parsons. Many thanks to Jeff for his time and expertise.

The fourth annual Harvest Fest and Chowdah Cookoff was a resounding success, despite the drizzly weather early in the morning. Approximately 40 craft and farm market vendors filled the Bethel Common with their beautiful wares, and 10 local restaurants treated us to their delicious chowdah.

One will be to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund, another to the oncology unit at Rumford Hospital for some needed equipment, and another to Opportunity Farm. DONALD J. MASON SR.

Donald Jesse Mason Sr., 75, of Woodstock, died Sept. 18, 2001 at Stephens Memorial Hospital, Norway.

He was born in Apex, N.Y., on Nov. 17, 1925, a son of the late Jesse and Mae (Ulter) Mason. In 1934 he moved with his family to South Lancaster, Mass., where he attended Browning Memorial Elementary and South Lancaster Academy.

From 1943 to 1946, during World War II he served his country in the Merchant Marines. On Nov. 20, 1946, he married the former Virginia Thurlow of Woodstock.

Together they ran "VIRDON" dairy farm and trucking and logging businesses on Curtis Hill, while raising four children.

In 1967, they sold the farm and built Mollyockett Motel and Mason's Repair Garage on Route 26 in Woodstock. Mr. Mason continued trucking and doing excavation until being admitted to the hospital, due to complications of a recent illness.

He had been a very active member of the Woodstock Seventh Day Adventist Church, for many years.

He donated many uncountable hours of time along with financial support to the Foresdale School, and to church projects. A major project was to have the vision and expertise to plan and head up the building of the "Hope Thurlow Memorial Community Center."

He had always been a visionary, and his most recent project/hobby was "The Mason Lazy M Ranch," on the top of Curtis Hill with beautiful views of the Presidential Mountain Range. Mr. Mason so enjoyed working on this project, creating a place for his family, which extended to the church, and also many others in the surrounding community to enjoy.

Very recently a baptism was held at the Mason Lazy M Ranch, creating a beautiful backdrop scene for this event. Over the years many family reunions and Sabbath potluck dinners have been held there. Mr. Mason is already missed greatly by a multitude of family, church members, and many, many friends.

He is survived and greatly missed by his loving wife of nearly 55 years; four children, Donald Jr., and his wife Kay of West Paris, Rosanne (Mason) Curruthers and her husband Robert of Stoneham, Mass., Steven and friend Neville Keys of Oxford, and Calvin and his wife Cathy of West Paris; six grandchildren; one adored great-grandchild; a sister, Beryl Christopher; two brothers, Jim Sr. of West Paris and Earl of South Woodstock; and many nieces, nephews, great-nieces and great-nephews. He was predeceased by four brothers, Wilmet, Raymond, Paul and Walter; and a sister, Wanda Caccace.

Funeral services were held at the South Woodstock Seventh Day Adventist Church on Friday, Sept. 21. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Hope Thurlow Memorial Hall, c/o Larry Wilday, 109 Koskela Road, Bryant Pond, ME 04219.

THURSDAY CHURCH SCHOOL

Because many families travel away from home on Sundays, the Bethel United Methodist Church is opening a new idea for Church School. Instead of Sunday morning Sunday School, the church will be opening a Thursday Church School. It will start on Thursday, Oct. 4, from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m.

Because children will be coming from public school, the afternoon will begin with a snack and fellowship time. At 3:30 p.m., will be start with music and bell ringing. Following will be Bible Lessons and Crafts. The Bible lessons will be both using printed materials and one-half hour will be using the computers on which most lessons are programmed. This will give the children an opportunity to use a media they are accustomed to using in public school. The program will end with a "sit-down supper." Transportation home, for children who need it, will be provided.

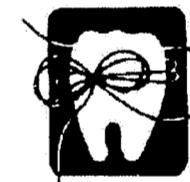

So that proper preparation can be made with the ordering of materials and preparation for meals, parents are asked to contact the United Methodist Church by calling these numbers: the church on Tuesdays and Thursdays between 10:30 a.m. and noon (824-2027); Mr. Kim Shannon (824-8216) or the Rev. Walter R. Brown (824-0797), a call-forwarding number or 998-7040.
